What the Kidneys do.

Their Unceasing Work Keeps Us Strong and Healthy.

All the blood in the body passes through the kidneys once every three minutes. The kidneys filter the blood. They work night and day. When healthy they remove about 500 grains of impure matter daily, when unhealthy some part of this impure matter is left in the blood. This brings on many diseases and symptoms—pain in the back, headache, nervousness, hot, dry skin, rheumatism, gout, gravel, disorders of the eyesight and hearing, dizziness, irregular heart, debility, drowsiness, dropsy, deposits in the urine, etc. But if you keep the filters right you will have no trouble with your kidneys.

I. N. Snell, living on Cottage St., Norway, Me., says: "Prior to using Doan's Kidney Pills I suffered from kidney trouble for a long time. There was a pain through my back, almost constantly, the secretions were irregular in action and caused me great annoyance. Some few months ago Doan's Kidney Pills were so highly recommended that I went to Stone's drug store and procured a box. Since using them I have been feeling a great deal better than before in over a year. My kidneys show more strength and are regular in action and secretions give me no little trouble."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and no other.

A Sly Naughty Trick of the Moon

One evening when I was a bashful young man I strolled with a maid down a green pasture

I was longing to ask her one question, you know. But the moon in the moon kept looking at me so And the daisies were peeping from soft beds of moss. So whatever I did I was sure to be seen. And a little cloud covered the eyes of the moon And I stole just one sip from the true lover's spoon. But he peeped out and caught me most awfully 'Twas a sly, naughty trick of the moon.

Chorus. All the frogs, in a chorus, they crooned; And the clouds they were dotted by the moon. All the world was asleep; But the moon played bo-peep. 'Twas a sly, naughty trick of the moon.

The frogs and the crickets are still by and by; The fun-loving daisies in slumberland lie; The stars brightly twinkle while all the world sleeps. There the eyes but those up above to peep. While I hold in my arms the girl I love best These eyes in the sky seem to never take rest. 'Twas a sly, naughty trick of the moon. I really don't care. The moon might go on with his cold icy stare; But he dodges the clouds with a twirling bob. While the soft breezes sigh through the willows the sleep. At the sly, naughty tricks of the moon. THE DREAMER.

Written for the Advertiser.

We Who Have Roamed. We, who have roamed the woodland trails, All summer 'neath an azure sky, Just boarding days we knew Were passing too swiftly by. We, who have lived to the whiplash-will, The cuckoo and the hermit thrush, What shall we do when the days grow chill In autumn's blighting hush?

We who have strolled in the cool dim shade Of the forest in sweet content, And knew what the summer breeze said To the trees and how much it meant. We, who have whispered our hopes and fears, What shall we do in the coming years? What shall we do when the days grow chill In autumn's blighting hush?

What I remember will you forget? The perfect days bearing no regret, Nor whither wandering, I wonder, Of the days I have spent with you. CORA M. W. GREENLEAF.

Nothing Like Maine.

This is what one man says about the Maine woods money at the seashore when the State of Maine is still on the map and her great forests and inland waters are still with her? The name, the "Pine Tree" State conveys no idea of stars on the flag and it grows pine trees, Horace Greeley's advice should be changed so as to read, "All ye that are weary from ten months faithful labor, fly each year to the woods of Maine and ye shall find rest."

This is my first visit to a northern Maine camp and little did I imagine that this place or any other like it would be sought after. But it is, and will continue to be, so long as the forests stand and the waters flow.

I shall advise my friends to keep away from the seashore but strike for the Maine woods at once and meet the fish, bear, moose, birds and deer, the mountains, the hills, the rocks, the wild flowers, the stars on the flag. No dress suits, silk dresses and patent leather shoes, but a flannel shirt, a cast off dress, a pair of shoes and the other ordinary necessities and you are in the height of fashion as required by Dame Nature.

You can have a swim, water bath, a bath tub, but you can't get the delightful, cool Maine breeze and a swim in the deep blue mountain water.

People are just beginning to find out that the fall and the winter and the spring in Maine are just as charming each in its own different way as the summer, and are long the seekers for rest and pleasure in "Maine's glorious climate" will demand camps and hotels for all the year instead of the summer affairs that they have heretofore occupied a few weeks in summer.

Piazza parties are favorite amusements both for day and evening, particularly when the sun is pouring his merciless rays down upon one's head. Then the cool retreats with the great rocking chairs or luxurious hammocks tempt us to give up fishing and tramping and enjoy the sweetness of doing nothing.

They Prayed Running. Harry and Ethel were crossing a field on their way to a Sunday school, when they encountered a bull. At the animal's approach they fled in terror. Faster and faster they ran, yet nearer and nearer came the bull.

"No, we'll pray running. You ought to do it; you're a girl."

"O Lord! O Lord! I can't," sobbed Ethel. "You do it."

The proximity of the bull demanded immediate action, and Harry rose to the occasion. Loud and fervently he prayed:

O Lord, for what we are about to receive make us truly thankful!"

—Success.

Women who have far passed middle life may look delicious in old rose, china blue, and above all in sumptuous white materials. Purple, too, which as far as utility goes can quite wear out its own life with black, makes charming gowns for day and evening wear, for any shade of purple from the most intense plum to a most delicate lavender—is admirable in vogue at present—old blue, rose, coral soft green and buff—the woman over 50 may well and appropriately affect any of them in her toilet.

A Letter from D. Cromett Clark. Somehow or other, my letter telling you that I had come to Portsmouth must have missed connections. Please change the address of the ADVERTISER from Augusta to care of Herald, Portsmouth, N. H., and send me a couple of back numbers—the last two in July—and I will proceed to read them and find out what is doing in old Oxford county.

I see Dr. Charles E. Johnston here frequently, for he is "in" on the city board of health, and is trying hard to do something and appears to be in a fair way to require the dislike of some of the people who don't feel willing to go to the effort and expense of making their places safe for their neighbors. He has done some good things and obtained some good results in the last six weeks since he was put on the board, but as yet it is only a beginning.

One of the features of the board of health here is that it has the enforcement of New Hampshire's new law requiring fire escapes on all hotels and lodging houses of three stories or more in height, and the attorney general has ruled that attic counts as a story within the meaning of that law. It is doubtless unhealthful to fall from a third-story window, hence this work was put upon the board of health.

Probably there are a goodly number of Oxford county people in this city, but I don't know where to find them. They are a good deal more likely to find me sitting at the desk and steering the copy on its triumphant way to the composing room.

Anybody who mentions the subject takes it for granted that Quincy of Laconia, with whom you are likely to be acquainted, will be the next governor of the Granite state, though Roscoe W. Pillsbury, owner of the Manchester Union, is making a strenuous fight for the Republican nomination which is understood to mean the election.

SOUTH CHATHAM, N. H. Summer School of Cookery. The Summer School of Cookery under the direction of Mrs. Jane McKee, Hill, the editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine, has just completed its fifth season, ending with a reception to invited friends. The day being exceptionally fine, afforded a pleasant trip for those coming from out of town, whether by bicycle, carriage or automobile.

The view from the summer residence of Mrs. Hill was ideal, the charming combination of mountain, valley and the Kimball lakes making a picture of rare beauty not easily forgotten.

The house was tastefully decorated by the students, who served ices, delicious cakes and candies of their own making to their guests.

The summer classes are very interesting in bringing together students and teachers from many parts of the country, those of the class just breaking up having their homes in Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New York, Ohio, Illinois, Washington, D. C., and California.

Mrs. Edith Elliott Thurston and two children, Howard and Robert, of South Boston, Mass., are visiting at the grandmother's, Mrs. Lavina Elliott's at Rumford Center, and Mrs. Thurston's father's, George Elliott's at Zircon, from July 25th till the first of September.

Arthur Putnam and Frank Knapp were at Augusta with the militia last week. Mr. Knapp is a corporal in the Rumford Falls band and Mr. Putnam belongs to the militia. David Knapp of Norway is stopping on the farm he has purchased on Hall Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Berton Fernald of Boston, Mass., are spending their annual vacation with Mrs. Fernald's relatives in Rumford. Aug. 10th they went to the Four Ponds with their nephew, Jeff. Thomas, and family of Virginia. They return to Boston, Aug. 16th.

WEST FRYEBURG.

A Young Progressive Farmer.

Harold Wentworth, who but a few days ago entered upon his ninth year, holds in his make-up the promise of a progressive farmer. Some time in July just past, when the peas of the Wentworth garden had refused a further supply for the table, Harold asked permission to pull up the vines which being readily given he proceeded to uproot the withered remains, saving the peas which had gone to seed which he planted in place of the matured crop.

Now the lad is delightedly watching the growth of a new crop already well above ground and with a reasonable expectation of its fruitage should the summer not prove abnormally short.

Birds Through an Opera Glass.

Florence A. Merriam in "Birds Through an Opera Glass," says: "When you begin to study the birds in the fields and woods, to guard against scaring the wary, you should make yourself as much as possible a part of the landscape. . . . The observation of a few simple rules will help you to be unobtrusive. . . .

"First—Avoid light or bright-colored clothing. . . .

"Second—Walk slowly and noiselessly. Among the crisp, rattling leaves of the woods, a bit of moss or an old log will often deaden your step at the critical moment. . . .

"Third—Avoid all quick, jerky motions. How many birds I have scared away by raising my glass too suddenly! . . .

"Fourth—Avoid all talking or speak only in soft undertones. . . .

"Fifth—If the bird was singing, but stops at your approach, stand still a moment and encourage him by answering his call. If he gets interested he will often let you creep up within opera-glass distance. Some of the most charming snapshots of friendly talk will come at such times. . . .

"Sixth—Make a practice of stopping often and standing perfectly still. In that way you hear voices that would be lost if you were walking, and the birds come to the spot without noticing you when they would fly away in advance if they were to see or hear you coming to ward them. . . .

"Seventh—Conceal yourself by leaning against a tree, or pulling a branch down in front of you. The best way of it is to select a good place and sit there quietly for several hours, to see what will come. Then you get at the home life of the birds, not merely seeing them when they are on their guard. . . .

"In going to look for birds it is important to consider the time of day, and the weather. Birds usually follow the sun. . . .

"During heavy winds and storms you are most likely to find birds well under cover of the woods, no matter at what time of day; and then, often on the side opposite that from which the wind comes. . . .

"In the wrong light a scarlet tanager or a bluebird will look as black as a crow. Let your eyes rest on the trees before you, and if a least sits or a twig sways, you will soon discover your bird. At a little distance it is well to gaze through your glass." . . .

The Unfortunate Love Affairs

Of John Wesley.

Some of John Wesley's matrimonial ventures are in the Gentleman Magazine from which we extract the following: "My brother" said, "I have a story to tell you. . . .

"I was, I think, born for the benefit of knaves." The story of some of John Wesley's love affairs supports this opinion. . . .

His first love was a Miss Betty Kirkman, about whom he speaks with fervor: "On this spot she sat," "Along this path she walked." . . .

Here she showed that lovely instance of condescension which gave new beauty to the charming arbor and meadows. . . .

About the year afterward Wesley formed another attachment, this time with a Miss Sophia Hopkey. . . .

"Miss Sophia," as he called her, made herself very agreeable, even laying aside all gaudy attire, which he disliked, and "My brother" said, "But though the rivalist thought that he liked for under he was so little in love that he laid the matter before the elders of the Moravian church. . . .

They replied, "We advise you to proceed no further in this business." . . .

Wesley said, "I will do as the Lord be done." Sophia did not break her heart, but very soon married a friend of her late lover, an event which Wesley thus entered in his diary: "Saturday, March 12—God being very merciful to my friend performed what I could not." . . .

Grace Murray, a sailor's widow, was 30 years old when she nursed John Wesley, as she used to do the other preachers when sick, through an illness that overtook him at Newcastle. . . .

She managed the orphan house, and had 100 members in her class. Wesley made her an offer of marriage, to which she replied: "This is too great a blessing for me to tell you to believe it." . . .

This is all I could have wished for under heaven." She traveled with him through a good part of England and Ireland, and was useful beyond description. . . .

She examined all the women in the smallest societies, settled all the female converts, visited the sick, and prayed with the penitent. She anticipated all Wesley's wants, acted as his monitor when she thought she saw anything amiss in his behavior, etc. . . .

All this time the poor lady was neglected by the attention of another lover, a preacher of Wesley's concerning whom she said to the chief: "I love you a thousand times better than I ever loved John Bennett in my life, but I am afraid if I don't marry him I will never be happy." . . .

Still, she would have married Wesley, and risked Bennett's madness but for the interference of Charles Wesley. . . .

This meddling marplot having himself married a Welsh squire's daughter could not allow his brother to marry one who had been a servant. He said that if such a misalliance took place their preachers would leave and the societies would be scattered. . . .

John Wesley refused to be dismayed, whereupon Charles rode to Newcastle and visited the dangerously attractive woman. . . .

"Grace Murray," he exclaimed, "you have broken my heart!" . . .

Explanations followed, and Grace Murray, thinking if she married Wesley, she would have a good husband, she was broken up, and the Wesley family ties ruined, married Bennett within a week. . . .

John Wesley was furious. For ten years it seemed as if God had been preparing a fellow laborer for him. . . .

"I fasted and prayed, and strove all I could, but the sons of Zeruiah were too hard for me. The whole world fought against, but above all my own familiar friend." . . .

This brotherly action deprived John of one who might have been to Methodism what Mrs. Booth was to the Salvation Army, and condemned him to 20 years' matrimonial misery with a terminative woman. . . .

Instead of being a ministering angel and an inspiring genius, sharing all his husband's aspirations and efforts, Mrs. Wesley allowed the meanest jealousies to occupy her attention, and spent her time in finding fault with her husband. . . .

She would drive a hundred miles to ascertain what he was doing, who was with him when he entered a town. She opened his letters and listened at the door of his study when anyone called upon him. . . .

She made him feel that his house was not his castle, and that when he went abroad he was only a prisoner at large. . . .

She even occasionally relieved her feelings by acts of personal violence. . . .

"John Hampson," writes Mr. Telford, "one of Wesley's preachers, told his son that he once went into a room in the north of Ireland, where he found Mrs. Wesley foaming with rage. Her husband was on the floor. She had been dragging him about by his hair and still in her hand had some of the locks she had laid violent hands on him. . . .

He told her to get up and wash her face, and then she said, 'I will wash it myself, and then I will wash your face.' . . .

"Still," as one of the hymns of the Revival says, "the bitter is sweet and the medicinal is food." Wesley believed that God overruled this prolonged sorrow for his good, and that if Mrs. Wesley had been a better wife he might have been a useful minister. . . .

Unhappily to his great work and might have saved too much to please her. If anyone wishes to see the pathetic picture of a henpecked saint, he should Deep Sea Fishing Party.

Thirty-two joined the deep sea fishing party, Saturday, that was arranged by Harry Bridge. Part of the crowd gathered at the Norway station to take the early morning train, while others took the train at South Paris. After arriving at their destination they all went to find the boat which was to convey them to the briny deep.

A two-masted schooner was arranged for the party and all began to find a place on the boat to put their luggage. The trip out was a pleasant one for some. About half a dozen shocked clams, while others were leaning over the rail entertaining (?) themselves in feeding the fish. After getting 12 or 15 miles off of land the captain cast anchor and the fishing began.

Fish of numerous kinds were caught. Three prizes were put up—for the largest, next to the largest, and the smallest. The largest fish was a 19 lb. pool-look caught by Arthur B. Hart of the ADVERTISER. The prize was $1.50.

The second largest fish was caught by Walter Chase of South Paris, this fish being a 16 lb. pollock. The second prize was $1.00. The bobby prize was awarded to Dr. L. Hall Trufant of Norway for catching (we thought) the most peculiar looking fish, in fact it was the largest fish caught, but the contest was an eatable fish. He received the prize of 40 cents. The fish was a large skate.

At noon a fish chowder which was prepared by one of the crew was served. Some didn't care for it, while others ate it heartily.

About 3 o'clock the party started for the run back to port. During the run back E. C. Green of South Paris took a picture of the crowd.

Just as the boat landed it began to rain, and then the crowd began to scatter, some going into stores, others going to the station and some stood in the doorways.

The late train carried the tired and seashore crowd back to their homes, some carrying the prizes of the day with them. The names of those who went are as follows:

Harry Bridge, Mgr.,
Dr. L. Hall Trufant,
G. H. Lane,
A. W. Bridge,

Wallace Strickland,
Walter Chase,
Arthur Morgan,
Arthur B. Hart,
Ernest Crockett,

The name of the boat was Fannie Bell, Peak's Island. The boat was in charge of Capt. Allie and Lester Allie and engineer C. F. Coffin.

Democratic Rally.

First Campaign Talk of the Season at Norway, Saturday.

Hon. A. S. Kimball, presided at the Democratic rally that was held at the Norway Opera House, Saturday afternoon. The Norway Brass band furnished music, playing a selection in front of the Opera House just before 2 o'clock, and were followed to the hall by a crowd that filled the seats of the floor of the hall.

On the stage besides the speakers, Hon. Obadiah Gardner, candidate for Governor and Hon. D. J. McGillicuddy, candidate for congress, were Hon. A. Kimball, B. G. McIntire, Justin McIntire, A. E. Shurtlett and T. H. Sawin.

Mr. McGillicuddy, the first speaker, dealt almost entirely with national issues. He stated that he wanted to present the matter to them not as a Democrat but as a citizen, as one of the people regardless of politics. He hoped there were Republicans, Prohibitionists, Socialists and members of other parties present. He dealt with the tariff question at some length, showing that it was a question of great importance and for the interest of every man's welfare to look into it. If the lobbyists study day and night and Sundays to see how they can figure to get their hands in the people's pockets and put them into theirs. One of the old propositions of the other party that they still adhere to is that the tariff is for the benefit of laboring men.

Mr. McGillicuddy had official statistics with which he showed that on goods manufactured in foreign countries and shipped here the cost on various articles was from 19 to 38 per cent, while the tariff was at 150 per cent. Still other figures were given to show that goods manufactured here were sold in foreign countries at a much cheaper price than they are here. He then took up the steel, beef and other trusts. It was shown that wages are not higher by the tariff as is claimed.

The wealth of the country is in the hands of a few. The laboring class work for small wages to pay profit on watered stock. The Democrats believe that the remedy lies in taking off or reducing the tariff on those articles that are sold in foreign countries cheaper than they are sold for here.

He closed by asking all to investigate the matter for themselves, not to take his word for it and not to take John Swasey's.

After the applause had ceased a gentleman in the audience arose and asked Mr. McGillicuddy if he reduced the tariff to such an extent that the trust magnates didn't like would they not deduct their business in such a way to starve the people to it. The reply was that they had already done that to a large extent "but thank God we have just enough power left to put them out and let's do it while we have that power." This brought down the house.

Mr. Kimball then introduced Mr. Gardner, who began by telling a story of an old dorky who went to a neighbor's and made complaint that his wife was very extravagant. Asked to explain he said that on Monday she would ask him for one dollar, Tuesday for 50 cents, Wednesday 25 cents and so on through the week and did it week after week. The week and did it week after week. Mr. Gardner said he replied that he didn't know for he hadn't given her any.

Mr. Gardner said this would apply to his speech making. He then spoke highly of the Grange and the men who till the soil as the greatest wealth of the country. The farmers have the right to have a say in the government of the country.

State issues were taken up and Mr. Gardner stated that he didn't come before the people as a representative of a rich man nor set of men but come as the standard bearer of the Democratic party which came to him entirely unsolicited. He didn't see how a vote for Fernald was a vote for Taylor nor how a vote for Gardner was a vote for Bryan.

And to illustrate this stated that Fernald was an advocate of prohibition and opposed to resubmission, while Taft says that all forms of prohibition law are against the spirit of the American people. He had heard of some saying that they couldn't support Gardner as he was for free rum. He wished to say that he was a thoroughly temperance man, never drank, and that he would support the local rum shop where for the past month the sales had amounted to $825 and there wasn't as far as he knew any epidemic. He believed heartily in resubmission as he considered it the wisest and best plan to handle the question and get it out of politics. The good done by the prohibitory law is offset by the evil. Taxation, economy in public expenditures and other questions were handled in an efficient manner.

After the speech was a large number remained to meet the speakers. Mrs. Gardner was with Mr. Gardner, who with Mr. McGillicuddy were conveyed by automobile to Bethel where they spoke in the evening.

Norway Municipal Court.

The hearing in the case of Otto Hekkinen, who was charged with stabbing Yusi Koibonem at Greenwood, July 22, which was continued from Friday, July 31, was held at the court room last Friday. Hekkinen was found guilty and given a sentence of $5 and costs and ten days in jail and not pay more than $20 additional. He was committed. The fact that the man who was stabbed was the aggressor, influenced the court to give a lighter sentence than would have otherwise been done.

Eustie Bennett was arrested by Deputy Sheriff W. A. Bicknell and brought before the court, Friday, charged with having intoxicating liquors concealed on his person with intent to sell in violation of the law. Bennett is an old offender and was given a sentence of $100 and costs of $15 and sixty days in jail, and for non-payment 60 days additional. He was committed.

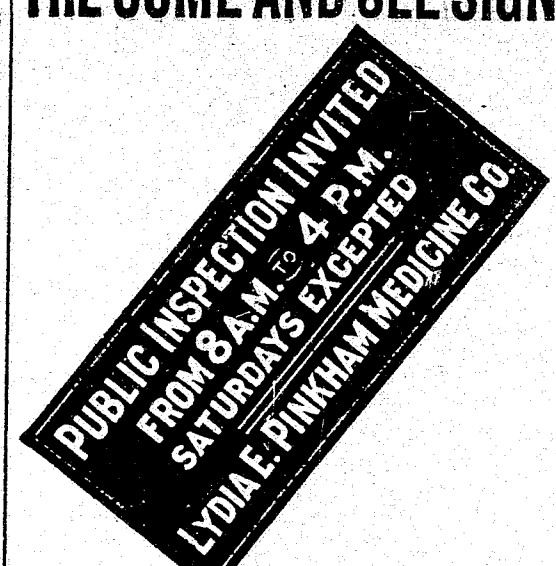

Master Arthur Penley has been visiting his aunt, Mrs. A. P. Farnham.

P. O. Howard and crew of Livermore Falls, of the Maine Telephone Co., are here at work. They are changing over general lines at Oxford. M. P. Abbott, general manager, was here, Tuesday, on business.

Frances Crockett has been visiting at William Young's. Mr. Young's mother, Mrs. Emma Harding, who has been visiting there, has returned to her home in Franklin, Mass. Hazel White is working for Mr. Young.

Charles B. Freeman has a colt sired by Vastar that was three months old Sunday and weighed 475 pounds. The colt and mother have been turned out to pasture until this week when Mr. Freeman took them in as he has work for the horse. The colt is a beauty, well built, and will make a fine big black horse.

THE COME AND SEE SIGN

This sign is permanently attached to the front of the main building of the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

What Does This Sign Mean? It means that public inspection of the Laboratory and methods of doing business is honestly desired. It means that there is nothing about the business which is not "open and above-board."

It means that a permanent invitation is extended to anyone to come and verify any and all statements made in the advertisements of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Is it a purely vegetable compound made from roots and herbs—without drugs?

Come and See. The women of America continually use as much of it as we are told? Come and See.

Was there ever such a person as Lydia E. Pinkham, and is there any woman asked to write? Come and See.

Is the vast private correspondence with sick women conducted by women only, and are the letters kept strictly confidential? Come and See.

Have they really got letters from one million, one hundred thousand women correspondents? Come and See.

Have they proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured thousands of these women? Come and See.

This advertisement is only for doubters. The great army of women who know from their own personal experience that no medicine in the world equals Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female ills will still go on using and being benefited by it, but the poor doubting, suffering woman must for her own sake, be taught confidence, for she can't might just as well regain her health.

Monday's Court Proceedings.

Saturday and Sunday were apparently days of "celebrating" with a goodly number of people. Saturday afternoon after the regular ball game, a game was played between two teams from the shop for a quantity of beer or other liquor and the results were manifest about town a few hours later.

Several arrests were made in the evening on the Rumford road, near the street, which at that time seemed to be the headquarters of the crowd or syndicate.

Judge Jones being out of town, court was held at the clerk's office, court house, South Paris, before Judge Chas. F. Whitman.

The first three that were arraigned were charged with intoxication and disturbing the peace at the Starbird boarding house. These were George Webber, Will Linnell and Jack Hickey. Each pleaded guilty and after some questioning and good advice by the judge and a promise to do better in the future each was given a fine. Webber $3 and costs of $11.88, Linnell the same, and Hickey $3 and costs of $14.13.

Those concerned in the base ball celebration were then taken up. It appears that for two or three weeks two teams have been playing for drinks for stakes. Jailer Farrar was informed of it last week and he kept watch Saturday and found that a keg of ale and other goods had gone to Norway on the afternoon train. Keeping watch of the ball game, after it was over he saw them go up Alpine street. About 9 o'clock he went to the bunch who were camped about the keg in the woods just off the road. There were seven there and all were taken to the county jail.

Alphonse and Arthur Tailleur pleaded not guilty. They gave bonds of $100 for their appearance at another hearing to be held before Judge Whitman, Tuesday at 9 o'clock. A. J. Stearns, esq., appeared and paid $1 and costs of $14.96. Frank Jones, Luke Corlies and Alphonse Martineau pleaded not guilty and were allowed to go after recognizing in the sum of $100 for their appearance at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning.

In the case of Fannie Dellea it was taken into consideration that he had a wife and three children to support and a sentence would deprive them. Dellea stated that he would see that a similar thing didn't happen again and recognized in the sum of $500, sentence being suspended during good behavior.

After the return of Judge Jones on the afternoon train Deputy Sheriff W. A. Bicknell brought six more into court on the same charge. They were Bertram Goldthwaite, John King, Luke Monty, Chester Berry, Timothy Harrington, Willie Walker. All pleaded guilty and each paid a fine of $5 and costs of $12.58 and were discharged.

Mending.

Rents will look much better when mended if they are attended to at once, because the longer they are left the more ragged the edge becomes.

Lay the garment right side down and put the edges of the rent as close together as possible. Cut a piece of mending tissue rather larger than the space that is torn and lay it on top.

Take a piece of thin woolen material the same size as the tissue and as near the color of the cloth as possible, lay this on top of the tissue and when placed in exactly the right position iron with a hot iron until the patch adheres to the garment.

The heat will cause the tissue to dissolve, forming a sort of glue. If the material is of light-weight goods it will be best to use a patch of exactly the same sort of goods, but if the material is heavy, such as is used in men's suits or coats, a lighter patch will be very much better.

A clean cut in heavy materials may be mended by putting the two edges firmly together and basting them to a piece of paper on the right side.

Take a thread and insert the needle about three-eighths of an inch from the edge and carry it between the cloth about half an inch the other side of the cut and draw the threads through; put the needle in where it came out and carry it to the other side about half an inch beyond the edge in a slightly slanting position.

Continue to do this until the whole rent is darned. Be careful not to pull too tight. Darn in the same way in the opposite direction.

It is difficult to use this method of mending if the edges are the least bit frayed, and on thin materials it must be done with the greatest of care, using the finest thread and needle possible.

All darns must be pressed when finished. To do this, lay the right side down on the ironing board and on the wrong side lay a damp cloth and iron until perfectly dry.
